

SHEARMAN & STERLING

Disclaimer

Shearman & Sterling LLP has created the consolidated legislation available on this webpage from materials made available by (i) HM Treasury, (ii) U.K. legislation printed and published in the U.K. by Her Majesty's Stationery Office, part of The National Archives, and the Office of the Queen's Printer for Scotland in conjunction with The Stationery Office Limited, and (iii) European Union legislation published by the European Union.

These materials aim to show the changes HM Treasury proposes to make to U.K. and retained EU legislation through statutory instruments made under the powers granted by the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018 to correct EU law deficiencies and ensure that it remains effective after Brexit. As a result of the efforts we have made in reflecting the line-by-line amendments in U.K. draft, proposed or final Brexit legislation into original U.K. or retained EU legislation (as amended), intellectual property rights in these materials also vest in Shearman & Sterling LLP. These materials may not be reproduced, sold, copied, reverse engineered or used for any purpose whatsoever without our prior written consent or agreement.

These materials:

- are of a general nature only and are not intended to address the specific circumstances of any particular individual or entity;

- are subject to change and not necessarily comprehensive, complete, accurate or up to date; and

- do not constitute professional or legal advice (if you need specific advice, you should always consult a suitably qualified professional).

If errors that we have made in producing these materials are brought to our attention, we will try to correct them. However, Shearman & Sterling LLP accepts no responsibility or liability whatsoever with regard to these materials and makes no representation as to the fitness for purpose or accuracy of the information provided in these materials. We undertake no duty of care to any user of these materials. Any person wishing to understand the legislative position or proposed legislative position should consult primary sources.

This disclaimer is not intended to limit the liability of Shearman & Sterling LLP in contravention of any requirements laid down in U.K. or other laws nor to exclude its liability for matters which may not be excluded under U.K. or other laws.
